Toadflax

If you see this weed, pull it, bag it, and destroy it. Toadflax is a noxious weed! It spreads by seeds and creeping roots. New shoots and seedlings emerge throughout the season, beginning in midspring. Seeds germinate from very shallow depths and will germinate on the soil surface.

This weed flowers from June through fall, with shoots flowering earlier than seedlings. The seeds have no dormancy period and can germinate as soon as they are shed. They remain viable for up to three years in the soil.

Toadflax is a strong competitor. Mowing will not eliminate stands. Contact Alberta Agriculture and Forestry toll-free 310-3276.
